

WELCOME TO TRANSACT

Welcome to another edition of our Transact newsletter.

2017 looks set to be an exciting year in payments as mobile technology continues to evolve, security enhancements promise greater protection against data breaches and the Internet of Things supports an expanding range of connected devices.

At TNS, we're better positioned than ever to help the industry capitalise on the latest innovations. We have a strong portfolio of solutions and a dedicated team who are now under the guidance of John Tait who has joined TNS as Managing Director of our business in the Asia Pacific region. I wish you all a successful and prosperous year.

If you have any questions on any of the topics raised in this edition of the newsletter please contact your account manager or email solutions@tnsi.com.

Making Connections

It has been a busy four months since I joined TNS. Thank you to all the customers and partners who have taken the time to share a valuable wealth of information with me.

I have genuinely appreciated the opportunity to learn more about how TNS can help enable your payments strategies - whether it be ATM Communication Support, SIM Management for point of sale or unattended devices, or providing a connection to one of our extensive global end points, one thing is evident and that is we are all focused on delivering sophisticated solutions in the wonderful world of payments to the end users of our services.

Significantly, one of our earliest decisions has been to renew our position as a global board member of the ATM Industry Association (ATMIA) which gives us a great opportunity to participate in ATM related discussions and initiatives across the Asia Pacific region where we support more than 17,500 ATMs.

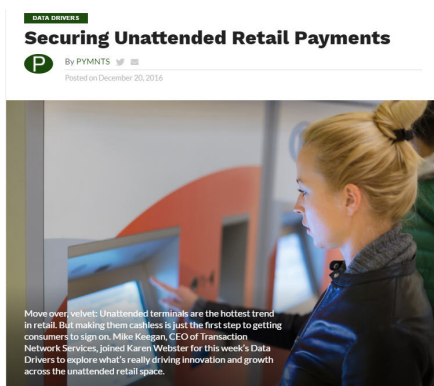

If we have not yet had the opportunity to speak, I always welcome the opportunity to talk and can be contacted directly via jtait@tnsi.com.

Managing Director, Payments Division Asia Pacific Region

TNS Shortlisted for Major Awards

TNS was recently a finalist at The Card & Payments Awards 2017. TNS' Managed POS Encryption and Tokenisation solution was shortlisted in the Best Security or Anti-Fraud Development category while the Point-to-Point Encryption (P2PE) solution which TNS delivered to Boots was shortlisted in the Best Technology Initiative of the Year award. The bespoke P2PE solution, which covers 2,600 Boots stores across the UK and Republic of Ireland, is expected to make Boots one of the first retailers in the world to achieve its own PCI P2PE validation.

PYMNTS Calls on TNS for Strategic Insights

TNS' CEO, Mike Keegan, and Head of Global Payments Strategy, George Zirkel, have been broadcast live on PYMNTS.com.

Mike participated in the Data Drivers series, providing an insight into consumer attitudes to card payments at unattended terminals while George joined the Topic TBD program to discuss ATM security. If you missed either of the sessions you can read the follow up feature articles using the links below. In addition, George was featured in an ebook published to mark the second anniversary of ApplePay which gave expert opinions on the progress of mobile payments technology.
